

Icy Weather Strikes Most of the Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unseasonably cold weather and gusty, raw winds held a vice-like grip over most of the eastern two-thirds of the nation today.

There appeared little prospect of an immediate, general break in the bone-chilling weather.

Record low temperatures were reported in most of the ice belt for the second straight day — 10 days in advance of the official start of the winter season.

In the snow-covered sections of the Northeast, pounded by storms for nearly a week, more heavy snow fell. Weary highway crews struggled to keep the main arteries open. Snow depths measured eight feet in parts of northeastern Ohio.

The main core of the Arctic air centered in the North Central region. Brisk winds powered the sub-zero cold southward to the Gulf Coast and eastward to the Appalachians.

Temperatures far below zero were reported in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, ranging from as low as 18 below in Huron, S.D.

Below-zero marks were general in the Midwest.

The South shivered in the season's coldest weather. It was near zero in sections of North Carolina, Kentucky, Arkansas and Tennessee and in mountain areas of northern Georgia and Alabama.

Florida reeled from the abnormally low temperatures for the second consecutive day. The bitter cold threatened winter vegetables. Damage to crops varied but some estimates are in the millions of dollars. No serious damage was reported immediately to citrus crops.

The beaches in southern Florida were bare and the tourists were clothed in newly bought sweaters and coats. Miami's 38 above Tuesday was a record low for the 11. It was 40 this morning.

New low temperatures for the date were set Tuesday in many sections of the icy belt. The mercury continued its downward plunge during the night and early morning, threatening record lows for today.

Experiment Station report for 24-hours ending 8 a. m. Wednesday, High 50, Low 11.

Farm Bureau Looks to JFK for Extension of Labor Unions to Agriculture

Associated Press Farm Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz called today for greater federal efforts to provide productive jobs for those who, because of technological advances, are unemployed.

"If this smacks of some dark design to regulate the manpower structure, it should not," he said. Wirtz urged further legislation to meet this problem in a talk prepared for today's session of the American Farm Bureau Federation convention.

The labor official told the big farm organization that he was disturbed by statements made by Bureau President Charles B. Shuman in a speech Monday suggesting that organized labor is antagonistic to the interests of agriculture.

"My own strong impression is to the contrary," Wirtz said. "Surely those interests which unite American agriculture and American labor are much stronger than those which divide them."

Wirtz said the technological revolution which has been forcing many out of agriculture is doing the same thing for people employed in city factories and offices.

All this raises the question, he said, as to whether the increased productivity of both agriculture and industry actually represents progress when measured in terms of human values.

In terms of increasing federal efforts in the employment field, Wirtz said the Kennedy administration will press the next Congress to pass a youth employment opportunities law.

Furthermore, he said, it will press for greatly increased funds to train and educate high school students and school dropouts for a wide field of vocations, with emphasis on white collar and technical occupations.

Wirtz suggested that the federal-state employment system be extended to rural areas not now serviced by the rural jobless. Wirtz made no mention of administration policies relating to efforts of some labor groups to Continued on Page Two

Death Penalty Discussed By Baptists

Capital punishment . . . and how do you stand?

"Is man justified under the laws of God to take another man's life?" These were questions posed by Circuit Judge Lyle Brown in an address before First Baptist Church Brotherhood Monday night in which guests from other churches attended.

Arkansas law sets out that a jury must recommend the death penalty even in cases of guilty pleas, and then it becomes the duty of the judge to impose it or to overrule the jury's verdict, Judge Brown pointed out.

"And right here Arkansas is ahead of the great state of New York—because in New York the death penalty is mandatory in willful, deliberate and premeditated murder cases. The judge must impose the sentence—but not so in Arkansas. The Arkansas judge can follow the jury's verdict, or overrule it," Judge Brown continued.

"But when the jury does find the defendant guilty beyond a reason doubt and recommends the electric chair, then you ask yourself: Is this legally and morally right? You've got to be sure a thousand times, because the judge must carry out the letter of the law and he also must live with his conscience," Judge Brown continued.

The speaker then strongly urged his audience to make up their own individual minds on this topic, "because some of you may be called upon in either state or federal court to serve on a jury in a death case."

He then went on to quote noted authorities, both pro and con, on this grave and most serious question which has become a lively topic and a controversial one in several states of the union.

Judge Brown went back to the year of 1930 and said that 166 persons were put to death by execution in the United States, then 128 in 1940; and 79 in 1950; and the latest figure is 65 for the year of 1956.

Six American states have abolished capital punishment in the past six years, and 32 foreign countries have also abolished it, Judge Brown went on to point out.

He concluded his address by saying that he could not disclose his own personal opinion in the matter because of his official capacity as circuit judge, but again urged his listeners to make up their minds on the question

Man Shot by L.R. Police

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock police said Tuesday they shot and wounded a man who held three persons at bay with a .38 caliber pistol and threatened the officers. Police said Tom Huntsman, 42, went to the home of Ethel Easley and held her and two neighbors at gunpoint. One of the three slipped out and called police.

When Huntsman turned the gun on the officers answering the call, they fired and struck him in the right arm.

Better Keep Cuba Pledge, Nikita Warns the U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared today that if American pledges on Cuba are not fulfilled "we will be compelled to take such actions as the situation requires of us."

He was speaking to the Supreme Soviet.

The statement was made at the end of an hour of speaking in the great Kremlin hall during which the premier said the Soviet Union had demonstrated it could preserve peace.

"We will never leave revolutionary Cuba in trouble," Khrushchev said.

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev told the Supreme Soviet today that his government had prevented an attack on Cuba by the "aggressive circles" of the United States.

He said the Soviet Union "did, and is doing, all that is necessary for the preservation of peace."

The premier pledged that his country would steadfastly continue to follow what he called the "Leninist policy of peaceful coexistence."

This policy has come under frequent attack from the hard-line Communists in Red China and Albania.

Khrushchev went to the Supreme Soviet accompanied by President Tito of Yugoslavia.

Tito's appearance was a surprise. He was greeted by a burst of applause.

It was one more honor for the visiting Yugoslav, who is here on an unofficial visit to promote better Soviet-Yugoslav relations.

After the applause, Khrushchev and Tito seated themselves on the rostrum, facing members of the Supreme Soviet, which is this country's version of a parliament.

Also with Khrushchev and Tito was Carlos Rodriguez, head of a Cuban trade delegation which arrived Monday.

Fire Burns School at Cherry Valley

CHERRY VALLEY, Ark. (AP) — Fire destroyed the Cherry Valley High School Tuesday night as fire fighters from four departments watched, powerless to stop the fire because of frozen water pumps.

Cause of the fire was not determined. The value of the building and contents was not estimated.

The fire broke out about 1:30 p.m. and the Cherry Valley Volunteer Fire Department answered the call. The department's water pumps froze while the trucks were racing to the fire.

Fire departments from Wynne, Hickory Ridge and Harrisburg answered a call for aid but the pumps on their trucks also froze enroute to the fire.

The temperature in the area stood at 10 degrees.

The small town has no fire hydrants. Fire fighters had to rely on water brought in tanker trucks.

J. L. Caldwell Jr., president of the Cherry Valley school board said the fire would have destroyed the building even if the pumps had not frozen.

"The firemen did save the other buildings around the school," he said. "The school was far gone when they got there."

Also destroyed was the gymnasium, which was connected to the school. Caldwell said the only equipment saved in the entire school was some basketball equipment, taken with the basketball team which was playing a game at Oak Grove Tuesday.

Caldwell said there were no immediate plans as to where the 175 high school students will attend classes. A meeting of the school board was set for today.

Firemen Rescue Month Old Child

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Firemen rescued a one-month-old child from a burning Little Rock home Tuesday. The child was found unconscious but was revived by artificial respiration. Firemen said the infant, Carol Yvete Jordan, was burned on the arms and body. The fire was started by another child playing with matches, they said. The baby and four other children were in the home alone at the time, they said, and Carol was on the second floor.

Gathings Plans Cotton Bill to Please All

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman E. C. Gathings, D-Ark., of the House Cotton Subcommittee said today he will seek passage early next year of a cotton bill applicable to the 1963 crop and aimed at solving two vexing problems.

These problems, he said, are: —Elimination of an 8.5 cent-a-pound disparity between the price paid by domestic mills or U.S. cotton and the price paid by foreign mills for the same cotton; and —Holding the income of cotton farmers in 1963 as near the 1962 level as possible.

Gathings' subcommittee will get a running start on the matter with a two-day hearing starting Thursday. There will be no change in the subcommittee's membership in the next—88th—Congress.

The hearing follows by some days a Memphis, Tenn., meeting at which Charles F. Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture, outlined generally the aims of the administration in a new cotton program.

Gathings said Murphy will not testify at this time but will until next year when the Agriculture Department can be more specific in its plans.

Representatives of about a dozen cotton industry organizations—ranging from producers to textile manufacturers—are to testify now.

Gathings, asserting the cotton industry is sick said foreign mills are flooding the country with manufactured goods made from U.S. cotton they are able to buy for 8.5 cents a pound less than what the domestic mills must pay.

Domestic cotton costs more than foreign, but the United States pays exporters 8.5 cents a pound so that U.S. cotton can compete in world markets.

"They (the domestic mills) need to get their cotton or about the same price as foreign mills get it," Gathings said. "We will try to eliminate that disparity. This makes for urgency on the part of congress."

The other problem involves preventing a cut in income of the cotton producer for 1963.

The national cotton acreage allotment for 1963 has been set at 10 million acres, compared with 18 million acres for 1962—a cut, Gathings said, of about 11 per cent in the acreage for producers.

In addition, he said there is some apprehension by growers that the Agriculture Department might cut the 1963 cotton support price.

These two actions together would seriously affect the income for cotton farmer he said, and so again "we need early action."

Britons Will Discuss the Common Market

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Britain's top European Common Market negotiator is returning to the conference table Monday with cautious hopes that the six market members may now be ready to show a greater spirit of compromise and urgency.

Deputy Foreign Minister Edgar Heath is too old a hand at the complex Brussels bargaining to expect any overnight change in the British agricultural will smooth Britain's difficult path into Europe. But the atmosphere has improved since last month.

The French, whose Brussels brinkmanship has seemed to be based on telling their partners to hold out and Britain would enter on the toughest terms, are being slightly more flexible.

They are yielding to pressure from their partners—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The Dutch and Belgians, in particular, want the negotiations speeded. They may be in a position to get their way. Big, outspoken Joseph Luns, the Dutch foreign minister, is chairman for December meetings. Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak will succeed him. Both are friends of Britain.

Already the six, at Spaak's urging, have agreed to increase the number and extend the length of their meetings this month and next to give the talks new impetus. New proposals for adapting Britain's subsidized home agriculture to the market's coordinated system will be made by Heath.

These involve what look like some small concessions. A preparatory period of about nine months would be allowed so that Prime Minister Harold Macmillan could fulfill his pledge to Parliament that the British agricultural system will not be changed during the present session.

Jan. 1, 1964, is the tentative date the negotiators are using in their working papers for Britain's entry.

If Britain becomes a market member in January 1964, the deadline for ending its subsidies to British farmers would come in the following October.

In addition, Britain would be allowed to pay producer subsidies to British farmers raising pork, bacon and eggs if they encountered difficulties. The aim of both operations would be to slow the rise in British food prices which is bound to come when deficiency payments to the farmers end.

It remains to be seen whether these concessions go far enough for Heath to accept them.

Senior Bowl Plans Are Developing

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A bulky squad headed by three players who were top choices in the pro drafts was named today to the North team in the 14th annual Senior Bowl game Jan. 5.

The threesome is composed of end Wilt Sweeney of Syracuse and interior linemen Ed Budde of Michigan State and Daryl Sanders of Ohio State.

The 230-pound Sweeney was the No. 1 choice of San Diego of the American Football League.

Budde, a 250-pounder, was No. 1 of both the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League and the Dallas Texans of the AFL. He has signed with Dallas.

Sanders, who is 6-5 and weighs in at 246, was picked first by the NFL's Detroit Lions and has signed with the Lions.

The South squad, headed by All-America center Lee Roy Jordan of Alabama, was announced Saturday.

The Southerners will be coached again by Weeb Ewbank of the Baltimore Colts. Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys will be back to tutor the Northerners.

Landry will have as his quarterback Jerry Gross of Detroit, who completed 105 of 212 passes during the past season, and Pat McCarthy of Holy Cross, also ranked high on total offense in the nation.

The Yankee line will average 239 pounds and the backfield 194. The Southerners average out at 236 in the forward and 197 in the backfield.

The game will be televised nationwide by NBC.

Moise Tshombe into line.

However, informants said British has told the secretary-general that he has told the secretary-general sanctions or other steps that could be viewed as applying force against the province.

Britain has argued that sanctions against Katanga could bring economic disaster to the rest of the Congo and defeat Thant's plan to reunite the divided country.

Thant apparently was determined to carry out his threat despite Britain's stand. He is said to have been bolstered by expressions of support from U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost and Ambassador Walter Lorian of Belgium.

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak warned in Brussels Tuesday night of the possibility of new fighting. He said that unless Tshombe takes a "decisive step which was asked from him, sanctions, very tough sanctions will then be taken."

As a first step Thant will seek to halt air traffic into Elisabethville, the Katanga capital, set up blocks on rail lines and cut off mail and telecommunication links.

Belgium is being asked to pull out about 700 Belgian technicians who play a vital role in the province.

The secretary-general wants Katanga to rejoin the Congo under a federal constitution and a 50-50 split with Leopoldville of the $40 million in annual revenues the European-owned Union Miniere combine now pays Katanga.

If Tshombe still resists Thant will ask member states to ban imports of Katanga's copper and cobalt.

Asks Order Change

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Associated Industries of Arkansas has asked the National Labor Relations Board to rescind the appointment of Thomas Stover to the Little Rock NLRB office.

Frank Cantrell, executive vice president of the organization, said Stover was unacceptable because of his background in labor unions.

You'd have sworn Bunnie's cry came straight from the heart. A man just plain couldn't help being affected. Rafe stood with bowed shoulders, itchy with embarrassment, feeling—dad drat i—like a caught Judas.

By the time she came, groping past her, he could ignore the unexpected brimming of tears, but he had no shield against the words that came tumbling so pitifully out of her. "You . . ."

She gulped "were figuring to go away without ever a word?"

He stared at the floor, trying to shut out the sound of her voice, seeming about as low down as a grown man could get. She honest ly had him, coming and going, but, woman fashion, couldn't leave it there. She had to rub his nose in it.

"After all we've been to each other . . ." She sighed. "Oh, Rafe—how could you?"

Since they hadn't been anything at all to each other, this struck a jarring off-key chord in a man who, though groggy, was still on his feet. It was just like pumping new blood through his veins.

By the time she came, groping arms out—reaching, Rafe had got off the hook and was going through the door.

The man out front must have been plumb asleep. Rafe, hunting Bathsheba, got clean around the house and halfway to the shed before he got loose enough from the spell Bunnie'd put on him to remember Spangler's gunnies.

With a startled yelp he lunged against the door, only to find it reinforced with a padlock.

Rafe didn't waste any time. He dragged out his pistol and banged the butt against the thing, again and again until the lock flopped open.

Bathsheba, pawing, bobbed her head and whinnied. Rafe found the blanket and got his saddle on her. The bridle and bit he had missed before were hung with his spurs from a peg on the wall and, though he shivered with impatience, he got them too, dug his boot in the stirrup and went on up.

The mare danced with excitement as the kneed her around. Rafe, truth to tell, was pretty excited himself, expecting any moment to hear wild yells go up. Quick as he got her facing the door he brought the reins down hard. She went through like a thrown rock.

He heard the first shot whimper cousin, slicing the air about an inch from his jaw.

But he held his fire, scorching flat out along the mare's extended neck, not daring now to swerve her; and this way, her newly shed hoofs pounding up a storm, they sailed into the open, straight as an arrow for the front of Pike's house.

That whipoorwill back in the rocks was really talking but Rafe, though he had his pistol in his hand, was a deal more worried about the one out front who'd be having a broadside target soon as they cleared this end of the house.

And now they were doing it. Now Rafe could see the front porch, and beyond it the dust-churning struggle of two limbed shapes furiously locked in grim combat. Bunny's red hair was flying around every which way and even as Rafe looked Spangler's man flung her off and snapped up his rifle. Rafe

He reined the mare left and, holding her to a walk, tried to sift a few facts from the tangle of his confusion. It was not too surprising his thoughts went to the girl.

From what little he actually knew, or had observed, there was very little evidence to nourish the suspicions he'd embraced that Bunnie and her father were purely out to do him dirt.

Elite Club Takes in First Negro

WASHINGTON (AP)—The elite Cosmos Club, whose rejection of a Negro for membership a year ago set off a stir that reached to the White House, has accepted its first Negro member.

John Hope Franklin, chairman of the Department of History at Brooklyn College, N.Y., was elected by the club's admissions committee Monday night.

Last January, the club's admissions committee turned down the application of Carl Royan, a Negro, who is a deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

It brought an outcry of discrimination and several government officials resigned, including John Kenneth Galbraith, ambassador to India, who had proposed President Kennedy for membership.

"Being a member or not a member is a matter of conscience," Galbraith announced then. "And mine was best served by resigning."

And Kennedy passed the word that he did not want to join.

Shot to Death

OZARK, Ark. (AP)—Gary Beck, formerly of Franklin County, was shot to death Monday in a holdup at a service station in Dixon community, police said Tuesday. Officers said Beck's body was found in the rest room of the station. His hands were tied behind his back, police said. They reported about $75 missing from the station.

Family Dog A Bone of Contention

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My littlest son traded a bagful of marbles for a puppy a year ago and ever since our family has been in a continuous row. The boys (we have two) promised to take care of him but, as usual, I wound up doing the job.

At the start, when he cried at night, I got up and gave him warm milk. It was I who bathed him every week. I say a house dog must be washed that often, even though my husband and boys don't agree. The puppy—we call him Tuffy—house broke easy. I saw to that. Having the two boys—one's, the other 10, to play with—he was fairly content, but underfoot. When spring came we tied him to a concrete building blocking in the backyard. He slept in the breezeway and promptly forgot all his manners. He cries and tugs on the chain and drives the neighbors nuts with his howling.

Now, my husband wants to keep him in the house which I object to since he's no longer housebroken. My older boy says he'll build a dog house but I say the only solution is to give Tuffy away.

Dear Troubled: Being a dog lover, I sympathize with Tuffy, yet appreciate the fact that there are people who don't like dogs, just as there are some who hate cats. Living with a dog takes a lot of adjusting, both on the part of the animal as well as the human.

Fundamentally, dogs want to please. If you love Tuffy, he will eventually respond to training. Dogs are creatures of habit. Once given a routine they will stick to it but, if that routine is broken, they temporarily forget all they've ever learned.

Does the happiness of your children and husband offset your work in training and caring for him? If his presence is breaking up the family, then give him away, but, remember, such an act might result in an even greater strain on family relationships. Think it over.

Dear Helen: Please write more about perfume making and other hobbies. Meanwhile, will you send me your leaflets on perfume and "Be Tactful." Thank You. —Mrs. W. Beard, Banning, Calif.

Dear Mrs. Beard: Praise is music to my ears! Thank you. Being a do-it-yourself type, I think everybody should have a hobby or creative outlet. Perfume making was my mother's.

Now I find relaxation in sketching. I studied art in Paris, as a girl, and liked best doing quick action sketches, or croquis, in pencil. My favorite subject is Kit Carson, our clumsy, lovable Basset puppy.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets

The issue came to a vote, and most of the 2,200 bishops chose the later course. Pope John then pulled the revelation thesis out of the council creating a special commission heavily staffed with Christian unity experts. The Pope ordered a vigorous rewriting of the thesis.

For more than a year, the word out of the Vatican had been that this would be the best prepared council in history.

The Pope now has ordered all the vast three years of advance work done over. He told the council's 12 commissions to condense and consolidate the proposals before the council resumes in September, trimming the 70 theses into 20 projects.

More significantly, he said he wanted the projects rebuilt in such a way that they would explain Catholic doctrine "through the methods of research and through the literary forms of modern thought."

Hope Captures Couple Games Over Nashville

By CARTER HARDAGE

Last night at Nashville turned out to be very good for Hope High, as the senior girls took a 39-26 game and the senior boys really put in some work to overcome the Scrapers 53-51, but only after some overtime hustling.

The Lady Cats, playing a good game, had little trouble defeating the Nashville girls team and came out ahead 39-26. Annette Halford was high scorer with 17 points.

Following were Shirley Smith, 10, Janice Lloyd, 4, Carolyn Halford with 3, and Jennifer Smith, 1.

The Bobcats really had their work cut out for them as they battled a tough Scraper team, although they did manage to come out ahead with a great team effort in which everyone contributed to beat Nashville 53-51. Things looked somewhat bleak for the Cats with Nashville leading 25-19 at the half. In the third quarter, however, the spark of hope flamed and the Bobcats came back to make it 37-36 Nashville at the Quarter's end. The Fourth Quarter became a madhouse with fouls, entrapments, and a determination to win by both teams. With 2 minutes and 15 seconds to play the Bobcats had a 49-45 edge. But while Nashville scored 5 points with a field goal and 3 free throws, Hope made only 1 point with a free throw. The last two Nashville points came with only five seconds remaining on the clock. Doe Kill in 26 Counties Dec. 27-31

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Doe will be legal game in 26 counties during the Dec. 27-31 deer hunting period, the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission said Tuesday. The commission has closed the current season to doe.

The decision represented only one change in the original regulations for the third period of the year. It closed Izard County to doe.

Last Friday the commission rescinded its previous order making doe legal game during the hunting period running from last Monday through Saturday.

Izard County residents voted Nov. 6 against the killing of doe and Johnson County residents have expressed opposition to taking them.

But Johnson County was in the list of those where taking of doe will be allowed Dec. 27-31. Other counties were Baxter, Benton, Boone, Carroll, Cleburne, Crawford, Franklin, Fulton, Independence, Jackson, Lawrence, Logan, Madison, Marion, Newton, Randolph, Scott, Searcy, Sebastian, Sharp, Stone, Van Buren, Washington, White and Woodruff.

Baxter and Woodruff counties were the only ones not on the rescinded list for the current period.

The commission forbid the use of dogs in Izard County and in other counties where doe are legal. All or portions of all other counties will be open to killing of legal bucks during the December period. Hunting is not allowed in Faulkner County north of Highway 64, Perry County north of the Fourche River and in the various state and federal game refuges.

But during the Dec. 27-31 period the St. Francis National Forest in Lee and Phillips counties will be open to deer for the first time in more than 15 years.

Dogs may not be used in the national forest.

Cotton Vote

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Over 97 per cent of Arkansas cotton farmers voted Tuesday in favor of marketing quotas for their 1963 crop. With 71 of the 72 participating counties reporting there were 9,630 votes cast for the quotas and 281 against. Last year the farmers favored the controls by 96.9 per cent.

Porker Cagers Drop First Game of Year

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Arkansas took its first defeat of the season in basketball Tuesday night, falling to Oklahoma State University 46-45 in an overtime game.

Sophomore James King hit a free throw at the close of the extra period to give Oklahoma State the edge.

King collected a jump ball with three seconds remaining in the period and was fouled by Larry Wofford in attempting to shoot as the gun went off. King was given two free throws and hit his first one.

The lead changed nine times and the score as tied eight times. The Razorbacks were ahead in the closing seconds of the regulation game until Oklahoma's Don Linsenmeyer got off a hurried 25-

Set for Winter

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Burglars at Little Rock Air Force Base apparently wanted to get ready for winter. They forced the hinges on a storeroom last week and took eight three-quarter length fur parkas valued at about $500, military officials said.

Attendance 5,000.

Broyles Hopes to Get Outside

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said Tuesday he has about given up hope of getting the Razorbacks outside for a drill this week in preparation for their Sugar Bowl game against Mississippi Jan. 1.

Eighteen degree weather forced the Porkers inside again Tuesday and Broyles said they would concentrate on timing and conditioning during the remainder of their workouts on campus.

They have scheduled training sessions at Biloxi, Miss. prior to the New Orleans game. Broyles had hoped to give the Porkers three outside sessions at Fayetteville.

Quarterback Billy Moore picked for the second team on The Associated Press' All-America selection, returned from New York where he appeared as a member of the Look magazine team. He had missed the Monday drill.
